Urban design firm Artisan Design Group is expanding.

Located in downtown San Diego since 2004, ADG has purchased a 3,500-square-foot showroom and studio within the Breeza mid-rise in San Diego. Improvements are taking place, with a grand opening scheduled for June.

ADG's new design showroom will include three full kitchens, several bathroom displays, home office interiors, home automation systems, customized lighting and storage solutions, cabinetry, flooring, window coverings, furniture and accessories.

"Purchasing a new building in the depths of the recession is a reflection of our confidence in the vitality and resurgence of downtown," said ADG president Jaimi Julian Thompson. "We have thrived during the last two years because we have strategically expanded our services to respond to market conditions. Buying this building now actually allows us to reduce our monthly facilities costs. That's the silver lining of the recession – the economy has opened up opportunities for small business owners."

ADG offers turnkey design services and custom remodeling to homeowners and residential developers. The company's nationwide consulting division provides customized services to homebuilders, design centers, supplier and manufacturers in the construction and interiors industry throughout the country.
